Comet scares and Indian panics seem to be on the same plane.

Up in Joe Cannon's town the troops had to be called out because workmen got hungry and desperate.

And we are told there is still hope for statehood. "Hope springs eternal in the Republican's breast."

If that "rain" last night was the result of the efforts of Mr. Comet, he must be mighty small potatoes.

Of course a little thing like antedating letters and plagiarism doesn't bother the "Big White Elephant."

It was predicted that Taft would be a good bit of a fizzle, but no one imagined it would turn out to be as bad as it has.

It now turns out that the Indian scare was caused by a finger coming in too close proximity to a nose, and then the finger wiggled.

That fifteen thousand majority for saloons in Denver constitutes the greatest setback woman's suffrage ever received in this country.

The Battleship Maine is finally to be raised from the mud of Havana harbor. It has taken the Republican party twelve years to come to that conclusion.

The chief answer to the charges made by Mr. Kerby seems to be that Kerby made sure of a new job before he risked the old one. Perhaps there is no other answer to be made.

Taft now says he didn't say it. He is willing to admit that the Insurgents are not as bad as they are painted; in fact they are pretty decent fellows after all, provided they vote for his pet measures.

That mess at Washington is a sad commentary on American politics as viewed by the Republicans and conducted by a Republican president. Taft may be a big man but he uses mighty small political tactics.

That ride on the comet's tail failed to materialize. Fact is, we think the comet is a good bit of a humbug. The old time people who could see anything scary in the Halley comet must have had pretty big imaginations.

The prize fighters seem to be having their share of trouble. Now the big scrap has been transferred to the city of graft and earthquakes, and the two brothers, one black and one white, will mix it up under the protection of the city that could not get rid of her grafters.

THE WEDNESDAY EVENING REVIVAL MEETING.

The rain is God's rain and the meeting Wednesday evening at the Baptist church was God's meeting. In thoughtfulness the congregation left many saying, "Surely God is in this place." Mr. Sellers, the singer, told the beginning of the work of D. L. Moody in Chicago. Mr. Sellers teaches music in the Moody Bible Institute and teaches on Sunday "The Friendly Bible Class," a class that had by actual count an attendance on May 8 of 305. His story of the beginning in Chicago of that modern apostle, Moody, had to do with two men, seven boys, and a box car. The work grew—a modern miracle. With Sunday School peonies the first story of the present Moody Church was built; the second story was finished with royalty from song books. Moody and Sankey gave all they received from the sale of song books to the Lord. This explains the present great plant in Chicago and the great Bible school and work at Northfield, Mass.

While the rain kept man away the attendance was far beyond expectations. The singing was full of life and fire. For a solo Mr. Sellers sang "Have Faith in God." The song Dr. Torrey called for more than any other in the year of their work together. The choir and the audience mastered the new hymn, "Look and Live." Tonight the singing starts at 7:45; that the choir may have more practice. Come, if you wish, at 7:45 and listen and learn to sing.

"Get into the Game."

(R. O. Sellers.)

Taht we bring nothing into the world and take nothing out is known in some quarters and to some people. Things are here when we arrive, and are left when we depart. It is our use or our abuse of them that blesses or curses. The sea is old and so is the shore but each returning tide is new. It is the same old sun that returning brings each new day. The question is not so much about the sun as our use of the day. We are living in a day when we are learning a new idea, that of combining all forces for the advancement of commerce, government and religion. Every boy that enters the world is an individualist of the highest order and we at once begin to teach him the social order. The Book tells that one shall chase a thousand and two ten thousand, and the fact probably is that the ten thousand are an unorganized mob. Moses could not free the slaves alone and had to leave the country after his first miserable failure. When he and the leaders of Israel mobilized their followers they marched forth to liberty. The American colonies welded together by a common enemy nearly fell to pieces after England withdrew. The struggle to get together was greater than to fight a common foe. The business world of today is passing through a severe ordeal trying to learn how to cooperate and the mighty force of the syndicate is rapidly combining those outside the combinations. We are as classes, as trades, as states, as communities, learning that the whole is greater than the sum of all the parts.

The churches are conservative. Church men professing faith in the invisible hesitate to use visible agencies. We are afraid to soil ourselves with political and business methods. There is, however, evidence of a change of attitude. The Y. M. C. A., with its millions donated by business men and corporations, is rapidly bringing us together. The great task of missions is so presenting itself that we are beginning to realize it is a man's job and that it cannot be financed by pink teas and mite boxes but calls for the combined united force of the Christian men of American and other Christian nations. The task of business is becoming too great and Federal control is being sought. The task of winning the world is too great, too large, for the local church and the need of the hour is co-operation. The task of winning the men of Roswell for the Man of Galilee is too great for any one man or any one church. Ezekiel saw a valley filled with dry bones, unorganized; he prophesied and they became organized, upholstered with flesh and he had, not a mob but an army. Bones moved by the wind only rattle; organized, flesh-covered and enbreathed they move as an army. Believers in a common Christ we must have faith enough in each other to work together, to face a common foe. There is so much that we hold in common and such a few things that really divide us that we can afford to forget the latter and emphasize the former. It is mass play that wins the game. Shall we not get into the game?

Service in Christian Church.

A. J. Bush of Texas, representing the Benevolent Fund of the Christian Church, will preach in the Christian church tonight at eight. All members and friends interested are invited to be present.

Five years ago Rev. Bush was here and many who knew him in Texas and have heard him will desire to hear him again.
